VOL. 14, NUMBER 106 MONESSEN, PA, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 15 1915 SIX CENTS THE WEEK

The fall season is here. This country has arranged to loan $500,000,000 to Great Britain and France. Are you still croaking hard times? Maybe a little judgment and business push would help you.

Defeated For Nomination But Urges Republican Victory

We are now on the eve of a great political battle, one in which the attention of the entire county is directed towards Monessen, and fellow citizens please act with discretion so that in the future (the central combination nor ten thousands such dominating and contaminating influences) can possibly ever again become the pulse of any of the candidates destiny from our home town, but rather the entire county may with one voice acclaim Monessen justly, and righteously entitled to the nomination of any favor which may be pleased to announce for championing the straight Republican ticket from top to bottom.

This application I feel at this particular time will be the medicine that will cure the most malignant disease, and will be girthing conditions with an influence that will compel all factions to recognize as of a most staple origin.

Since the eventful day that decided the fate of so many candidates, the local districts have been visited with a great periodical storm that sways the staunchest of oaken uprights and causes many a weird sound to penetrate the organs of the silent voter of its municipality, but behind this great tumult that unearths so many reflections there comes the realization of this most forcible truth that life's uncertainties are one multiple after the other and for one to be constantly deviating from one strength to the other would mean that all of your public and private asylums be crowded to their very capacity, so men give we candidates your shoulder and assist us in turning the wheel of fortune, so that its lucky number may eventually stop at some one's address because thus coming to our rescue you will be placing us in a proper position that will reflect no evil on past assurances of the genial makeup of Monessen's populace which always has been of a most democratic nature, and although not being able to produce any of the elective cabinate, yet she stands ever ready in assisting a most worthy cause.

I have endeavored to demonstrate while traveling over the county the fact that a mill man is not simply a physical structure, conducting his affairs in a mechanical manner, but that he possesses the combined ingenuity whose organs have the gray matter that constitutes all the elements that go to make up the steadfast American.

I have endeavored to put in execution every gift of man kind that may in the future tend to lessen the embarrassments that visited me as a mill man during my late campaign, so boys, the rest remains for you all to assume in turning a deaf ear to any illiterate influence that maytakefrom the grasp of the workman the privilege of his one remaining inheritance (his vote) and by the grace of God register it in favor of the policy that gives to all the just returns for a true physical and mental endeavor, and allow the other man who is lacking in principle to accept the few paltry dollars that pushes its way at the eleventh hour into every campaign which at every instance registers his price of character; and like the snow under the spell of a sun shine , it melts away, but the distorted feature of a most inhuman act will constantly remain as a night mare to the recipient.

Jesse J. B. Wall

Two Big Features

Manager McShaffrey announces two headliners in Marguerite Clark in the famous romantic comedy "Gretna Green" which will be the attraction at the Star this evening and Betty Nansen in "Should a Mother Tell," the feature for Monday. Local people will remember the irresistable Marguerite Clark as the principal character in "The Goose Girl." In "Gretna Green," she bewitchingly portrays the adorable character of Dolly Erksine, a little English belle and a bit of a flirt, who queens it over the beaus of the realm with sovereign sway until she loses her heart under circumstances both humorous and dramatic.

The Monday feature with Betty Nansen, playing the part of a mother in "Should a Mother Tell" is a picture with a moral and one that should be seen by both mothers and children. Perhaps never before had a woman been called upon to face a problem of such vital importance to herself and her dear ones as presented itself to this mother. You must see this picture to fully realize its worth.

Will Speak Here

The next regular meeting of the Board of Trade promises to be an occasion of interest as the entertainment committee has been fortunate enough to secure Erasmus Wilson, whose writings and lectures are familiar to everyone. The regular meeting of the organization has been postponed one week or until Oct. 22.

Erasmus Wilson is well known as "The Quiet Observer" and his articles appear daily in the Gazette Times. His lectures are always interesting and interspersed with enough comedy to keep his audience carefully following every word. It is the intention of the Board to have the ladies attend this meeting as Mr. Wilson will probably talk on a subject of a civic nature. In order that seats may be procured for all, the meeting will probably be held in some hall in town, the exact place to be announced later.

Councilman Killed

James Fitzimmons, president of Scottdale borough council, was killed, and Ora Mauk, Walter Stoner and Frank Moorehead were injured when the latter's automobile crashed over a 10-foot embankment on the outskirts of the town last night.

Mr Moorhead was driving the machine down a slight grade on the Alverton road and when nearing the bottom, lost control and the automobile went over the embankment. The automobile struck the ground and turned over four times. The men who were injured were thrown out of the car before it alighted. Mr. Fitzsimmons was crushed to death when on the second turn, the heavy car fell on him. Passersby righted the machine and attended Mr. Moorhead. Mr. Stoner was only slightly bruised.

Mr. Fitzsimmons had been president of Council since the first of the year. He was a millworker. He leaves his widow and three daughters.

The new schedule of trains on the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad will go into effect Sunday, October 17 with but very little change in the running time of trains to this city but with the addition of two new trains on Sunday. The fast train arriving here at 8:59 will leave 12 minutes earlier or at 8:47 in order that better connections can be made at Pittsburgh with the Buffalo flyer which leaves at 10:07.

This train which in the past has only run on week days will run daily including Sundays, beginning Sunday and the evening train due here at 6:23 from Pittsburgh will be run every day including Sundays. This will give the traveling public an extra train to Pittsburgh each Sunday morning and another train from the city in the evening. There are no other changes in the time of arrival or departure of trains on this branch on the New York Central lines.

Candidate Withdraws

John L. Armitage of New Kensington, today filed his resignation as a candidate for the office of County Commissioner, on the Washington party ticket. The resignation was filed in the commissioner's office. Mr. Armitage was one of the candidates of the Republican party who sought the commissioners' office and not one of the lucky ones he refuses to appear on the Washington party ticket which is only a shadow—a mere remembrance.

Monessen Loyal

The news that has gone forth that this town will stand loyal to the Republican party and its principles, has stirred other sections to favorable comment . The West Newton Times Sun says editorially:

"Democratic candidates who evidently started the report that Monessen Republicans would bolt the ticket next month because of the defeat of her trio of candidates, will find very little to cheer them in the emphatic announcement that voters in this greatest protection stronghold will continue steadfast in support of the G. O. P. The defeat of her candidates at the late primary was undoubtedly disappointing but in politics, as in every test with which human kind is confronted, gameness and a disposition which accepts gracefully and without murmur every turn of fortune, are characteristics to be admired. Monessen's turn will come. In the meantime, watch her loyalty. With our Democratic friends, the Monessen incident is a case of the wish being father to the thought."

Triplets Celebrate

An incident of extraordinary character occurred recently in the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of triplets, Lewis S. Hough of Williamsburg, George S. Hough of Smithton and their sister, Elizabeth, wife of William Williams of this city. This unusual observance, unique in local history, took place at the home of Charles Hough, near Smithton, on the old Hough homestead, and it is said to have been a most enjoyable and happy occasion.

To Build Speedway

Automobile men of Western Pennsylvania are watching the progress of a movement for the establishment of a motor speedway either in Washington county or along the Allegheny valley. The Pittsburgh Speedway is working on the matter, and anticipates results within the next few days. Near Finleyville is one proposed site and it may be selected. The proposed length of the course is 2½ miles.

Olympic Theatre

Two great features today at the Olympic, pictures which we have been advertising all week, costing us double the original amount of their cost in order to see that our patrons would not miss such an opportunity of seeing Metro's great feature, Mary Miles Minter, the leading actress in her best play "Always in the Way." My new mamma is very cross and scolds me every day, I guess she does not love me, for I'm always in the way. A fine singer from Pittsburgh will sing it today while the picture is on the screen. Also another great Universal feature. "The Wolf of Debt" and William Garwood and Violet Mursereau, in four extraordinary parts and 6 parts of Metro makes 10 reels today that we have to show them all for they are only two pictures and we can't do otherwise. Our show 1 hour and 40 minutes. 1t

Father Of Local Man Died Very Suddenly

From a stroke of apoplexy of which he suffered Wednesday morning, Dr. Noah Woodrow Patton, aged 62 years, and one of Charleroi's best known physicians, died yesterday morning at 6:45 o'clock at his home at 417 Washington avenue. Dr. Patton was on his way to make a call at about 9:15 o'clock Wednesdaw morning when he was stricken. He was caried into a Third street house and later to his home where after a few hours he relapsed into unconsciousness, remaining in that condition till death.

Dr. Patton was born in Richhill, Perry township, Fayette county. He worked in the cabinet shop of his father until he was 21 years old, then attended California Normal school for six terms. From this institution he was graduated in 1878. He began the study of medicine under Dr. J. H. Davidson at Perryopolis. Later he took a course in the Jefferson Medical college at Philadelphia, being graduated March 29, 1884. For nine months he was associated with Dr. Davidson at Perryopolis, then continued his practice alone in that town. In 1887 he went to Smithton to establish a practice, leaving that point in 1891 to take a post graduate course at the polyclinic school in Philadelphia. In 1892 Dr. Patton went to Charleroi and associated with Dr. W. S. Dodd. He has been there ever since.

Dr. Patton was twice married. His first wife was Emma R. Wilson, daughter of Rev. Wilson, a Kansas minister. She died in 1879. In 1884 he married again to Anna Freed Elwell, daughter of J. S. Elwell of Perryopolis. One son, William Patton by his first wife is living at Monessen. Mrs. Anna Elwell Patton, his widow, one son Edwin of Charleroi and two daughters, Mrs. Arthur Miksch of Charleroi and Mrs. Harry G. Parkinson of Hickory in the immediate family survive.

Continuation Schools

Pennsylvania has made the time for attendance on continuation school instraction eight hours per week. This will make it possible to give these children one day in school, provided the continuation school is operated on an eight-hour day. The intent of the law is to establish a new type of school for practical preparation for life These children cannot be grouped as in the regular school, because they represent so many different grades Neither can those children who will be thrown out of work and compelled to attend school every day be put back in the grades of the regular school They will have to be taken care of as in Wisconsin and Boston in the new type of school The general plan of continuation school work, as developed by the experience of Wisconsin and Boston, is to provide instruction in cooking, sewing and millinery for girls, and wherever business conditions warrant it, in salesmanship and other subjects related to particular occupations. Boys are instructed in mechanical and architectural drawing, shop mathematics and in the elementary principles of trade practice in wood and metal Both boys and girls are also given instruction in English, citizenship, physiology and hygiene. These schools serve to give the pupil a try out experience to discover his aptitude for a vocation and when that is settled to give as much training along the chosen line as the facilities of the school afford . The tendencies for such children to become shiftless by frequent changing about from one job to another is counteracted by the definite purpose of the school work. The supreme aim of the continuation school is to arise in pupils an ambition and to start them intelligently on the way to realization

This question of continuation schools seems to indicate the necessity for a radical reconstruction of the public school system It has become self-evident that the public schools are not meeting the needs of the majority of children as concerns practical preparation for life. When from sixty to seventy-five per cent. leave at fourteen years of age with nothing more than a sixth grade education, it cannot very well be claimed that the public schools are meeting the need. Manual training and domestic science in the seventh and eighth grades does not even scratch the surface of this need Something more radical in the line of practical preparation for vocations must be attempted for the sake of this majority of the school population

The continuation school offers a solution if developed along broad lines For all day pupils the work can be built up so that Pennsylvania will have education shops as in Connecticut,where boys and girls can learn vocations under conditions closely akin to the commercial shop, and where the educational values are greater than in the average manual training high school or old fashioned trade school. Children who have completed the sixth grade and are fourteen years of age should be permitted to follow a course of practical training for a vocation as a wage earner There is no great mystery about what should be attempted in industrial education There have been altogether too many surveys with a lot of amazing statisics and altogether too little real work done There have been too many professorial talks about the pedagogy of the thing and too little practical effort made to solve the problem.

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE!

People Notice It. Drive Them Off With Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, the bowels and the liver with Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are the successful substitute for calomel—there's never any sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with "a dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result.

Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

THE BROKEN COIN

A Story of Mystery and Adventure

By EMERSON HOUGH

From the Scenario by GRACE CUNARD

COPYRIGHT, 1915, BY WRIGHT A PATTERSON

Novelized From the Motion Picture Drama of the Same Name. Produced by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

SYNOPSIS.

Kitty Gray, newspaper woman, finds in a curio shop half of a broken coin, the mutilated inscription on which arouses her curiosity and leads her, at the order of her managing editor, to go to the principality of Gretzhoffen to piece out the story suggested by the inscription. She is followed, and on arrival in Gretzhoffen her adventures while chasing the secret of the broken coin begin.

FIFTEENTH INSTALLMENT

CHAPTER LV.

The King of All Countries.

The wide wings of the air craft rose gracefully and steadily from the perilous dip which it had made almost to the surface of the sea. Under the steady hand of the pilot it swung up and around and headed back toward the shore.

Below them now lay the towers of Gretzhoffen. The roar of the motor made conversation impossible, but the three occupants of the car looked at one another happily. Roleau, wet, weary but smiling, had curled himself down as best he could and accepted this last phase of his adventure with his usual philosophy. They landed after a time, and Roleau went about his own affairs while Count Frederick and Kitty walked for some time along the sea front where lay the shipping of the little port.

Kitty looked out across the sea—that sea beyond whose waves so far away lay the country from which she had come hither.

"Soon," said she at length, sighing, "I must be going." Her voice had no elation in it after all.

"Going, mademoiselle, where?" rejoined Count Frederick

"Home, across the sea It has all been like a dream. I wonder if I am awake, if I am alive.'

'I thank heaven that you are both, mademoiselle. As to your return, how can that be?'

"My work is done here. I have no reason for remaining."

"No reason, mademoiselle? Our work is but beginning—I say, our work. Mademoiselle—Katharine—you know, you surely know!"

"I am so sorry!" she said.

"For what, mademoiselle? You know I love you, that I never will love again. Is not that the truth itself? Can you doubt it? Doubt me, fail to believe my every word—and I will go. You shall not see me again."

It was like him thus boldly to challenge fate. But she only shook her head.

"I cannot," she said. "I wish I could."

"But you cannot."

He had her hands in his now, there in the open day. And now she turned her face toward him.

"You shall never deny truth, my dear," said he. "All my life I shall challenge you to deny me and my love. When you can, when I have been unfaithful to you, life ends for me. But between now and then, long years of happiness lie—long years of love—long, happy, useful years."

"Happy? Useful? Yes, for you, perhaps, but how for me? You cannot come to my country. How can I stay here? What place is there for me?"

He took her face now between his hands and looked her fair in the eyes—eyes now filled with tears.

"But," said he, "was it fair—was it fair to make me love you—when I could have no hope—to make me love you—and then to send me away?"

"Send you away! That should never be. If need be, I also would go."

"And leave your duty—your place here? Then I should not love you."

"Then you do!"

In spite of the tears on her face, Kitty Gray suddenly smiled with a miraculous sweetness. "I am American," said she. "We have a fable of one George Washington. I am like him—I cannot tell a lie!"

All her answer now was inarticulate. He caught her in his arms, there in the broad light of day, and for the moment neither of them cared what the past had been, what the future might be.

They were seated presently upon a little bench in the sea front park. Between them on the seat lay the two pieces of the Gretzhoffen coin. Kitty pushed them together once more.

"Sub pavimenti—angule vergentis—cruciati camerae—reperietur—thesauras—Regis Graetzjovensis."

"Under the floor—the northeast corner—the torture chamber—you will find the treasures of the king of Gretzhoffen!"

"See, it has spoken!" said she. "It is happy now, and I am happy. If only it were right that we might be together—I should spend my life in trying to make you happy, too, Sir Frederick. But you cannot go with me—that would be wrong, and how can I remain here? You forget I am an American. I am an alien here, and I am not of your—"

He laid a hand upon her lips, frowning. "You shall not say that word," said he. "You shall not mention rank or class—never in all your life to me. What we have won, we have won together. What we enjoy, we shall enjoy together. What of honor or rank or reward ther is for me, that shall be for you as well. I will listen to nothing—I will not tolerate the thought of your leaving me now—I say, we but begin everything."

CHAPTER LVI.

The Treasure of the King.

In his room, deep within the palace, King Michael was beginning, for the first time, to recover from his alcoholic stupor. He had known nothing of the stirring events of these last days. He accosted those about him with the irritability of shattered nerves.

"Frederick, where is he? What, he has deserted me? And Sachio—I want Sachio of Grahoffen and another man. What was the name of the fellow with him? I sent them for another bottle or so of wine That was ten minutes ago, I tell you—at least ten minutes, and they have not returned. Is that the way to use a king? My head—fellow, send to me my physician at once."

* * * * * * *

Deep within that chamber of horrors which before now had smitten the souls of both with terror, two persons were bending over in the light of the candles, which gave a faint illumination.

"It is here," said Count Frederick, glancing at the little compass which he had brought him. "The northeast lies there—it is yonder, where sits yonder skeleton in the iron chair! That was the last guard of the king."

"What shall we do?" gasped Kitty Gray. "I dare not"

"Nonsense! my dear. Fear?—why should we feel fear? Yonder friend of ours has kept the place well and safely—seated there in his iron chair waiting so long—for us!"

He laid a hand on the grinning guest in the iron chair. The bony frame was confined upright by metal bands which supported it. He found the ancient chair heavy to move, but applying his great strength, at length, gently as he could, he shifted it to one side. On the floor of the chamber, formerly beneath the iron chair, there showed dimly in the dust, the outline of a steel plate, an iron ring welded to its center. Count Frederick pointed. "This is the place," said he, with conviction. "It was guarded well. See here—I doubt not this is the lid which covers what is below."

Yet even his strength failed to remove the covering. He found at last a part of an old bar, pushed it through the ring and put his strength to it. A faint dust arose, the lid yielded slowly, and at last fell back with a clang upon the rocky floor. At the edge of this newly made aperture there showed the edge of another plate, close fitting.

"It runs farther," exclaimed Count Frederick "See—look what is below!"

Kitty, overcoming her terror, bent forward with him to gaze down. "Yes, it is here," said she. "But look how much there is!"

"Softly," said her companion. "Let us open this cavern more widely. Here is the grave of a giant treasure—I had not dreamed what really it was."

Carefully he pushed in and under the edge of the bar, removing plate after plate of that which had been the covering of the treasure place. Below this, they saw a cavity filled with steel receptacles. Each was locked, clamped and banded, tight against all intrusion.

"What is here?" said Count Frederick. "Are we baffled even at the last?"

Kitty Gray cast the rays of her light here and there about her in the cavernous interior. By chance her eyes rested—indeed were drawn, fascinated, to the skeleton which sat bent forward in the iron chair. A dull gleam of something like metal caught her eye.

"Look," said she, and pointed. There, fastened by a metal band to the wrist, was a key—it was half hidden between the bones of the forearm.

"Look," said Count Frederick, and held it up before her. "Cunning enough was the man who hid this treasure, and yet he left it plain for those he meant to find it."

He stooped and tried the key in the lock of the central chest of those which lay below. The next moment he had flung back the lid.

Their eyes rested upon what would have made glad the heart of any buccaneer. Gold, countless pieces of gold! Coins of unknown mintage—jewels that sparkled—gold that shone after all these years—all this lay before them.

It was the lost treasure of the king!

They stood, awed, spellbound and looked down at what they saw.

"Come," said he, at length. "I shall close these chests and make it all secure. We have seen enough. This treasure is not ours. It belongs to Gretzhoffen. The parliament must be called—the ministers must be summoned into council. Before them I shall place the story of what you and I have done."

"But look yonder," said Kitty, plucking at his sleeve—her hand had grasped it comfortably for many moments now, for she took comfort in the touch even of his clothing, the presence of the bulk of his body near her. "Look, Sir Frederick," said she, "what is that in this chest below?"

He bent over, casting down the gleams of his little light. What he saw was a long package of folded parchments thrust down at the side of the chest. Gently he drew it out and held it in his hands for a moment, regarding it curiously.

"I shall not open it!" said he. "With you, I feel a certain fear. I believe here is something come down to us out of the past—some message from the king. If this be so, it belongs not to me, but to the people. It must go before their duly constituted rulers."

He placed the parchment in his breast and gently closed down the steel lids which covered the cavity Even he lifted gently back to its place the seated skeleton, its arms now wide, its palms turned upward as though in rest. Its vigil was ended at last. The secret of the Broken Coin was known.

ONLY SIXTEEN, GIRL VERY SICK

Tells How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

New Orleans, La.—"I take pleasure in writing these lines to express my gratitude to you. I am only 16 years old and work in a tobacco factory. I have been a very sick girl but I have improved wonderfully since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now looking fine and feeling a thousand times better."—Miss AMELIA JAQUILLARD, 3961 Tehoupitoulas St., New Orleans, La.

St. Clair, Pa.—"My mother was alarmed because I was troubled with suppression and had pains in my back and side, and severe headaches. I had pimples on my face, my complexion was sallow, my sleep was disturbed, I had nervous spells, was very tired and had no ambition. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has worked like a charm in my case and has regulated me. I worked in a mill among hundreds of girls and have recommended your medicine to many of them."—Miss ESTELLA MAGUIRE, 110 Thwing St., St. Clair, Pa

There is nothing that teaches more than experience. Therefore, such letters from girls who have suffered and were restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be a lesson to others. The same remedy is within reach of all.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

LAY CORNERSTONE

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 14—The city is in a state of anticipation over the cornerstone ceremonies which will be held for the fine new $200,000 post office building of the Women's Benefit Association of the Maccabees now in course of erection in this city. Local business men waited on Miss Bina M. West, the supreme commander of the association, whose residence is in Port Huron and offered her the keys to the town for that day. Port Huron feels indebted to Miss West for all that she has done for the city and on Oct. 22, the date of the corner stone laying, every citizen will pay their respects to her. A large number of invitations are being issued for this unique event and a big day is assured.

The ceremonies will be conducted by the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, Most Worshipful Grand Master Lusk officiating. All the fraternalists in the city of Port Huron as well as those in Sarnia will participate.

When erected the building will be the only woman's building of its kind in the world, and within its four walls will be handled the work of the largest fraternal society of women in the world. Miss West did not anticipate such success 23 years ago when she began in a modest way to organize the local reviews throughout the various states; and when she looks back on these years and reckons on what has been done, it seems like a fairy tale. Miss West began without a member and with a debt of $150 on October 4, 1892. She has now personally signed away nearly thirteen millions of dollars in benefits, and reckons the reserve funds of the association as nearly nine millions, whose annual interest earnings this year will nearly reach the $400,000 mark.

The above notice is of interest to many local people. The Association is very strong in the Monongahela valley, and Monessen in particular has a very large review. The Commander and Record Keeper of Monessen Review have been invited to witness this cornerstone laying—a place being reserved for them in the large parade that is to follow the ceremonies.

The most important work this Association has done is endowing beds in hospitals for its members. Pennsylvania has beds in Harrisburg, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. Monessen Review has at present a patient in the New Homeopathic Hospital, East End. She received a free operation and will receive hospital care as long as necessary, and the association bears all expenses.

HOME OF THE PIPE ORGAN

Following is the program of the Olympic theatre for week beginning Monday, Oct. 11 and ending Saturday Oct 16—:

REGULAR PROGRAM

FRIDAY—"The Wolf of Debt" with William Garwood and Violet Mersereau. Here is asplendid production, one that would go on its wonderful setting and photography alone. But there is a lot more to it than that. To be sure one of the big punches is accomplished by means of night photography in a rain storm, but the story is there with a punch all the time. Handsome Billy Garwood as the deserted husband of pretty Violet Mersereau shows himself very much of a man, and will win your applause when he chases the run-a-way wife and her lover on foot through a terrible storm. He is big enough and man enough to bring matters to the right conclusion with one of the most effective climaxes ever seen on the screen.

SATURDAY—"The Ghost Wagon," in three reels. Every movie fan loves a western story on the screen if it's good. And he knows when he sees a good thing Some of the bunko stuff put out as a western drama would make a horse laugh, but the Universal actors must know how to ride, and so there is a real thrill in "The Ghost Wagon" for every foot of film. Animated Weekly No. 186. The Strand theatre of New York, the best one in the world, runs the Animated Weekly for two years So it must be good and you know it, too.

SPECIAL PROGRAM

FRIDAY—Metro Pictures Corporation presents the fascinating screen personality Mary Miles Minter in a picturization of the song classic "Always in the Way," produced by Dyreba Art Films by Charles K. Harris

Please mister, take me in your car,
I want to see mamma
They say she lives in heaven, is it
very very far?
My new mamma is very cross and
scolds me every day
I guess she does not love me for I'm Always in the way."

A charming and emotional picture that should not be missed by anyone.

SATURDAY—The famous picture "The Diamond from the Sky." Our patrons know more about it than we do. It will not let you sleep while in our theatre.

FRAIL, SICKLY CHILD

Father Tells How Boy was Restored to Health and Strength

We have told the people of Monessen that Vinol is a wonderful body builder for ailing children. Here is more proof of the fact:—

J. L. Albury, of Miami, Fla., says: "Our little boy was puny and cross from the time he was born, and we hardly knew how to handle him. When he was three years old he was weak and so cross we could hardly live with him, and we could not get him to eat anything. A friend asked us to try Vinol. We did so and you should see the change it has made in him. He is now a good natured, healthy youngster, ready to eat at any time, and we cannot praise Vinol enough."

Vinol is especially efficient in building up puny, weak, ailing children, because of the real cod liver extract ives, peptonate of iron and beef peptonate which it contains, and as it is without oil or grease, children love to take it. —Hirsch Drug Co.
